Workshop on: ‘The Tanzania we Want: Have we optimally harnessed SADC opportunities for social-economic development’ 14th November 2018

This workshop is in line with Association of African Universities’ Celebration Week – 12-16 November 2018 that aims to promote the activities of Higher Education Institutions in Africa with the theme: the “Africa we want” by 2065.” The Tanzania we Want: Have we optimally Harnessed SADC Opportunities for Social-economic Development’ workshop seeks to reflect on ways the higher learning institutions can facilitate the social-economic development of young people to play a role to influence education, policy, legislative and social change; disrupt the status quo; and take on a more active role in Tanzania and SADC.

The workshop will consist of paper presentations and come out with strategies for developing young and other people critical and innovative minds so that we attain the “Africa we want” by 2065.

Tentative Themes

- i. Empowering Tanzanians through Education: how much have we integrated Education Protocol in SADC region development initiatives?
- ii. SADC and Multilingualism: Is this an advantage or disadvantage in harnessing opportunities
- iii. Role of young people in the national transformation
- iv. Youth in the politics, technology, entrepreneurship, employment, migration across countries. Education and gender equality
- v. Youth and the changing World: The power of innovation and creativity
- vi. Professional bodies in SADC Region: How are they flexible in recognizing education qualifications from Member States?
- vii. Project sustainability:
